

COVID-19 Fact Sheet

How can I help vulnerable Queenslanders?

Queenslanders are encouraged to join the Care Army, a group of volunteers and professionals who are deployed to protect and support older Queenslanders through the coronavirus pandemic.

Inspired by the Mud Army following the 2011 Queensland floods, the Care Army is looking out for those most at risk, including people over the age of 65, and people of Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander descent over the age of 50 – in ways that maintain social distancing.

There are three simple things we can all do:

1. Make sure our seniors have enough food
2. Make sure they have access to all their medication needs
3. Call or video chat to stay connected.

To join up to the Care Army call the Community Recovery hotline on 1800 173 349, or visit qld.gov.au/CareArmy

What support is available for people who are in quarantine?

The Department of Communities, Disability Services and Seniors (DCDSS) has engaged Red Cross to provide daily telephone wellbeing and psychosocial support through a telecheck service.

This support service is a way to check in on people who have been advised by a medical professional, Queensland Health or through government direction to quarantine at home to make sure they are coping well and have everything they need.

Red Cross can assist with:

- Tips for maintaining your physical and mental wellbeing

- Strategies for dealing with stress, anxiety and interpersonal conflict while in quarantine
- Advice for managing isolation, boredom and loneliness
- Identifying support needs and potential remedies or referral pathways
- Sharing information on the current Government requirements with relation to COVID-19

To register for this free Red Cross wellbeing telephone service, call the Community Recovery Hotline on 1800 173 349.

Can people who chose to self-isolate register to get support?

People are encouraged to be self-reliant – this can include online delivery of groceries and medication where this is an option. Alternatively, make arrangements with family, friends or neighbours to assist.

People who chose to go into self-isolation at home can call the Community Recovery Hotline on 1800 173 349 to register for over the phone social and emotional telephone support.

Where do I get health advice and updated health information?

Anyone can call 13 HEALTH (13 43 25 84) for health advice or information in addition to the information provided on the health.qld.gov.au/coronavirus website.

What do I do if I've been directed to quarantine and need essential food or medication?

People are encouraged to be self-reliant and use options such as online delivery and arrangements with family, friends or neighbours to assist with essential food and medication where possible.

People who have been quarantined and are not able to be self-reliant can call the Community Recovery Hotline on 1800 173 349 to arrange the non-contact delivery of essential food and medication to people in quarantine with no other means of support.

DCDSS provides this support by partnering with charities and non-government organisations (NGOs).

While the majority of Queenslanders have so far been able to support themselves, DCDSS is working in partnership with Grocers and Pharmacies as well as other agencies and NGOs to scale up to meet greater levels of demand expected throughout the state.

How can I manage a 14-day quarantine?

Suggestions to pass the time include:

- Keep in touch with family members and friends via telephone, email or social media
- Learn about coronavirus and talk with others
- Reassure young children using age-appropriate language
- Where possible, keep up normal routines, such as eating and exercising at home
- Arrange to work and study from home
- Ask your child's school to supply assignments or homework by post or email
- Do things to help you relax or things that you haven't had time to do before.

How can I prevent the spread of coronavirus while I am at home?

Practising good hand hygiene and sneeze and cough hygiene is the best defence against most viruses.

You should:

- wash your hands frequently with soap and water both before and after eating, and after going to the toilet
- cover your cough and sneeze, dispose of tissues, and use alcohol-based hand sanitiser

- avoid contact with others (touching, kissing, hugging, and other intimate contact)
- stay at home if you are unwell
- stay at least 1.5 metres away from people who are coughing or sneezing.

Advice for others living with you

The rest of your household does not need to self-quarantine unless you develop symptoms and are suspected to have novel coronavirus. Members of the household will be classified in this instance as close contacts, and will then need to be in self-quarantine.

If some-one wants to volunteer how do they do this?

For information or to register your interest in volunteering please visit: <https://emergencyvolunteering.com.au>.

Note that all face-to-face services with Volunteering Queensland have been suspended until further notice.

Symptoms of coronavirus

The virus usually begins as a fever, which is followed by a dry cough. After approximately one week the cough leads to shortness of breath with some people requiring hospital treatment.

Reduce your risk

Clean hands with soap and water or alcohol-based hand rub

Cover nose and mouth when coughing and sneezing with a tissue

Avoid close contact with anyone with cold or flu-like symptoms

Thoroughly cook meat and eggs

Avoid unprotected contact with live wild or farm animals
